About This Game

Zombie Killin' is a cooperative action game that can be played locally with up to four players. In it, your team must shoot its way through an endless onslaught of zombies while at the same time individually accumulating cash and purchasing upgrades.

After each game, the team is rewarded zombie coins which can be later spent to unlock new stages, options, cheats, and interesting extra modes.

Interesting Features

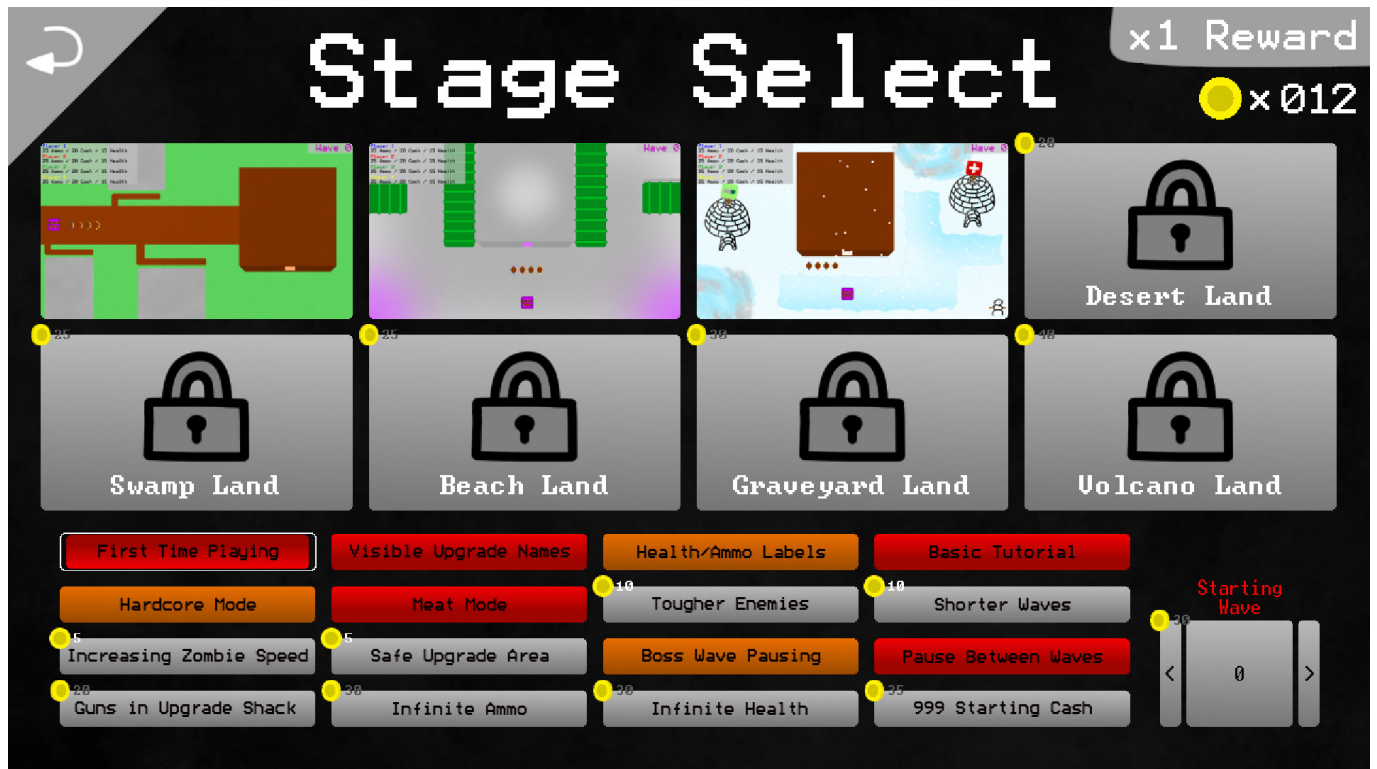

- Play with up to four friends in co-op survival or with up to five friends in zombies vs. survivors mode.
- Each player can customize their character's name, starting perks, and resource bonuses.
- Play through 50 waves + endless mode.
- Battle a challenging boss enemy on every tenth wave.
- Play through eight unique, colorful stages.
- Customize each game with thirteen unlockable options and cheats.
- Four unlockable extra modes (with four more planned to be added in later updates).

Was this worth the money? Not at all. I expected more from this game even though I paid one dollar. In my opinion, it's worth 25 cents. There are much more cheaper games that are more polished than this game.. It's not worth 3 dollars but to be honest, the game really isn't all that bad. I started out making fun of the games graphics and music but the gameplay... it actually does get pretty darn difficult. The game is actually a lot of fun. Just wish I could play co-op with friends online. It didn't seem like I could though :l. It's not worth 3 dollars but to be honest, the game really isn't all that bad.
